karsbrook green

The South Devon village of Kingskerswell, etymologically derives from the Old English 'Carsewell'; 'carse' referring to the 'local watercress', a plant that still grows freely in the area, and 'well' referring to the wells and springs in the vicinity; with 'Kings' relating to the royal ownership of the area. Sat upon an ancient foundation, and mentioned in the Domesday book, Kingskerswell is steeped in local history, including the village's parish church, St Mary's, which dates back as early as the 14th century.

Blakesley Estates have incorporated the area's rich history into their development of the site. The natural sandstone typical of the area is a central material used in the construction of the houses in the development. Karsbrook Green's name also incorporates the Old English 'carse' with the brook that runs through the area. Each of these elements also are present in the site's logo, reflecting the history and traditional housing style of the development.
